

IRELAND V SOUTH AFRICA

Ireland last played the Springboks in June 2016 when a famous first Test victory on South African soil was secured in Cape Town.

South Africa's last visit to Dublin was in November 2014 with Ireland convincing 29-15 winners. The opening fixture of the 2017 GUINNESS Series kicks off at 5.30 on Saturday, November 11.

Fiji will make their first appearance at the Aviva Stadium on Saturday, November 18 with a 5.30pm kick-off scheduled. Ireland have won the three previous Test fixtures between the two sides, the last of which took place at the RDS in 2009 with Ireland claiming a 41-6 victory. An Ireland XV side beat Fiji at Thomond Park in 2012.

The final game of the 2017 GUINNESS Series sees Argentina return to Ireland for the first time since 2012 when Ireland won 46-24. Since then there has been a number of tough battles between the two sides with Ireland coming out on top during the 2014 summer tour with two victories, and the Pumas claiming the honours at the quarter-final stage of the 2015 Rugby World Cup. The Argentina game will kick off at 5.30pm on Saturday, November 25.
